Abstracts

The global Pet Consignment Service market size is expected to reach $ 3675 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.6% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032). To address the complexities of procedures, high transportation risks, lack of professional care, and the inability of traditional logistics to meet the special needs of live animals during pet relocation, pet transportation services have emerged. Since the late 20th century, with the specialization of air cargo and the increasing demand for international pet movement, a standardized and humane service system has gradually formed in the field of live animal transportation. Currently, pet transportation services have developed into a comprehensive solution covering air cargo in dedicated compartments, door-to-door land transportation escort, handling of entry and exit documents, in-transit health monitoring, and real-time location tracking. Widely used in scenarios such as family relocation, international adoption, participation in competitions and exhibitions, working dog transfers, and travel companionship, it is a professional life-care logistics service that significantly reduces transportation risks, improves pet welfare, and ensures their safe and comfortable arrival at their destination.

Pet transportation services are upgrading from simply 'being able to transport' to 'transporting well,' becoming an emotional bridge connecting pets and their owners. In the future, it is necessary to strengthen technological empowerment, improve industry standards, and enhance service transparency to meet the growing personalized needs and safety and health challenges, achieving a value leap from 'logistics link' to 'emotional service.'
