Abstracts

The global Pet Dental Water Additives market size is expected to reach $ 282 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 6.9% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

In 2025, global Pet Dental Water Additives sales reached approximately 22.5 million bottles, with an average shipment price of about US$7.55 per bottle, converted on a 500 mL standard bottle basis. Pet Dental Water Additives are pet oral care consumables added to the daily drinking water of dogs and cats, typically sold as bottled liquids, concentrated solutions, soluble powders, or equivalent retail packages for convenient at-home oral hygiene care. These products help support breath freshening, plaque and tartar management, oral environment maintenance, and brushless dental care through enzymatic or compound oral care formulations, improving the practicality of daily dental care for pet owners and serving household dog and cat care, bad breath management, routine plaque and tartar control, post-dental-cleaning maintenance, and broader pet health consumption scenarios.

The growth of the Pet Dental Water Additives market is mainly driven by pet humanization, rising awareness of dog and cat oral health, low brushing compliance among pet owners, and increasing demand for convenient daily care products. Compared with toothbrushes, toothpaste, oral gels, and dental chews, water additives have a lower usage barrier and can be easily integrated into pets' daily drinking routines, making them suitable for households with pets that resist brushing or require support for bad breath, plaque, and tartar management. As pet health consumption shifts from basic feeding toward preventive care, daily wellness, and veterinarian-recommended maintenance, the category is expected to grow steadily, supported by repeat purchases, online channel penetration, veterinary endorsement, trust from VOHC-accepted products, and continued brand development in enzymatic formulas, compound oral care solutions, and dog- and cat-specific products.
