According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Pet Diagnostic Imaging market size was valued at US$ 688 million in 2024 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 1284 million by 2031 with a CAGR of 9.4% during review period.

In this report, we will assess the current U.S. tariff framework alongside international policy adaptations, analyzing their effects on competitive market structures, regional economic dynamics, and supply chain resilience.

Pet diagnostic imaging encompasses a range of techniques used to visualize the internal structures of animals, primarily pets like dogs and cats, for accurate medical diagnosis. Key methods include X-rays, which reveal bone fractures and some soft tissue abnormalities; ultrasounds, which utilize sound waves to visualize organs and blood flow; CT scans (Computed Tomography), offering detailed cross-sectional images for complex conditions; and MRIs (Magnetic Resonance Imaging), which provide high-resolution images of soft tissues, including the brain and spinal cord. These imaging modalities are essential tools in veterinary medicine, enabling veterinarians to identify health issues such as tumors, organ malformations, and injuries, ultimately guiding effective treatment plans and improving pet health outcomes.

This report is a detailed and comprehensive analysis for global Pet Diagnostic Imaging market. Both quantitative and qualitative analyses are presented by manufacturers, by region & country, by Type and by Application.
