Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Pet Dog Toothbrush market size was valued at US$ 448 million in 2025 and is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ 707 million by 2032 with a CAGR of 6.9% during review period.

In 2025, global production of pet dog toothbrushes reached 128 million units, with an estimated average selling price of US$3.4 per brush. Pet dog toothbrushes are oral hygiene tools specifically designed for dogs' oral structures. They are primarily used in conjunction with pet toothpaste, dental gel, or oral care solutions to remove plaque, food debris, and soft deposits from the tooth surface, reducing the risk of tartar, bad breath, and gum problems. Dog toothbrushes have smaller, softer heads and longer handles or handles angled to better reach the back of the mouth. They are often designed according to dog size, age, and acceptance levels, including long-handled toothbrushes, double-headed toothbrushes, three-sided toothbrushes, 360° toothbrushes, finger toothbrushes, and electric/ultrasonic toothbrushes. They are mainly used for daily brushing at home, puppy oral care training, tartar and halitosis prevention, post-operative or post-cleaning maintenance, gum care for senior dogs, high-frequency oral care for small dogs, and in pet grooming salons and veterinary clinics. The upstream of the industry chain mainly includes nylon bristles, PBT bristles, food-grade silicone, PP/ABS plastic, bamboo, TPR anti-slip materials, brush head bristle implantation equipment, injection molds, packaging materials, and related consumables such as pet toothpaste and dental gel. The midstream consists of manufacturers; the downstream mainly serves pet owners, pet hospitals, veterinary clinics, pet grooming salons, pet supply chains, e-commerce platforms, and supermarket retailers. Gross profit margins range from approximately 20% to 40%.

Globally, the pet dog toothbrush market is characterized by "low-barrier manufacturing, high-barrier education, and brand and channel-driven growth." North America is a large consumer market with strong pet family care awareness, and toothbrush and toothpaste sets, veterinarian-recommended brands, and high-end products are widely accepted. The European market emphasizes pet health, environmentally friendly materials, and professional channels. The Japanese market shows strong demand for small dogs, refined care products, and small brush heads. The Chinese and Southeast Asian markets are still in a rapid introduction phase. Industry development trends are mainly reflected in the following directions: First, cover-style, three-sided, and 360° toothbrushes are growing rapidly, as they reduce the difficulty of operation for pet owners and are more suitable for initial brushing training. Second, there is an increase in high-end and functional products, with veterinarian recommendations and scientific education becoming core competitive advantages for brands. Third, environmentally friendly materials and sustainable packaging will increase their weight in the European and American markets, with bamboo handle toothbrushes, recyclable packaging, and low-plasticity designs becoming differentiating selling points. Fourth, online channels and subscription sets are driving market expansion, with brands building complete oral care packages including toothpaste, toothbrushes, dental wipes, dental powder, dental liquid, and teething toys. Overall, pet toothbrushes are a core entry-level product that is basic, has educational value, and is sold in conjunction with toothpaste sets. In the future, the market will gradually shift from competition based on low-priced brushes to comprehensive competition based on "veterinarian endorsement + repeat purchase of sets + user-friendly brush head design + high-end electrification".
