Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Pet Respite Service market size was valued at US$ 392 million in 2025 and is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ 758 million by 2032 with a CAGR of 9.9% during review period.

Pet respite services refer to services where professional organizations or individuals temporarily care for and manage pets, typically offered when pet owners are unable to care for their pets due to business trips, travel, or other reasons. These services generally include feeding, cleaning, activity supervision, health monitoring, and necessary basic care. Some organizations also provide boarding environment management, video monitoring, and personalized care plans to ensure the pet's safety, health, and comfort during the boarding period.

The pet respite service industry chain mainly consists of upstream pet supplies and basic resource suppliers, midstream service providers, and downstream pet owners. Upstream includes suppliers of pet food, cleaning supplies, medical and vaccination services, and pet supplies and equipment (cages, monitoring systems, etc.). The midstream is the core link, namely pet boarding shops, pet hotels, pet hospital-affiliated boarding services, and in-home care platforms, responsible for providing daily care, environmental management, and value-added services. Downstream consists of pet owners with short-term boarding needs. In terms of gross profit margin, the upstream pet supplies supply generally has a gross profit margin of 20%-40%; the midstream pet temporary care service, due to its labor-intensive and venue operation model, typically has a gross profit margin of 30%-60%, with high-end pet hotels and personalized services reaching over 50%; the downstream is the consumer end and does not reflect gross profit. Overall, this industry chain is characterized by 'high added value on the service side, and profitability determined by brand and service quality.'

With the expansion of the pet-owning population and the upgrading of consumption, pet respite services are transforming from traditional boarding to professional, refined, and emotionally engaging services. It's no longer just about 'pet watching,' but emphasizes environmental quality, health management, and companionship. Especially in first- and second-tier cities, users' demands for safety (such as real-time monitoring), service standards (such as zoned management and vaccination requirements), and personalized care are constantly increasing, driving the industry towards branding and chain operations. At the same time, the industry also faces challenges such as inconsistent service standards, varying levels of professionalism among practitioners, and high costs of building trust. In the future, institutions with standardized operating systems, digital management capabilities, and a good reputation will have a greater competitive advantage.
