Plate duplicators are devices used for duplicating printing plates. They are commonly used in the printing industry to make copies of printing plates quickly and easily. Plate duplicators work by using a photographic process to transfer the image from the original plate onto a new plate. This process can be done in a matter of minutes, which makes it a very efficient way to produce multiple copies of a printing plate. Plate duplicators are especially useful for small to medium-sized print runs, where the cost of producing new printing plates for each run would be prohibitively expensive.
