Abstracts

A polyamide is a macromolecule with repeating units linked by amide bonds. Polyamides occur both naturally and artificially. Examples of naturally occurring polyamides are proteins, such as wool and silk. Artificially made polyamides can be made through step-growth polymerization or solid-phase synthesis yielding materials such as nylons, aramids, and sodium poly(aspartate). Synthetic polyamides are commonly used in textiles, automotive applications, carpets and sportswear due to their high durability and strength. The transportation manufacturing industry is the major consumer, accounting for 35% of polyamide (PA) consumption.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Polyamide in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. Engineering plastics segment is estimated to account for the largest share of the polyamide market in 2018. Polyamide engineering plastics are mostly used in automotive sector to make various parts such as radiator fans, speedometer gears, fuel tank, oil filter housing, and others. Automotive is the largest end-use segment for polyamide engineering plastics, followed by electricals & electronics end-use segment. Automotive is one of the most important market segments for polyamides, especially in the emerging economies. Emerging economies are increasingly investing in sectors such as infrastructure development, chemical industries, and automotive.
