Abstracts

The global Push Walker market size is expected to reach $ 449 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 4.9% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

A push walker is a device designed to assist toddlers and young children in learning to walk. It typically consists of a frame with wheels and a handle, allowing the child to hold onto the handle while pushing the walker along. Push walkers provide stability and support as children develop their balance and coordination skills, allowing them to gradually gain confidence and independence in walking. They are often used as a transitional aid between crawling and walking independently. In 2025, global Push Walker production reached approximately 15,600 k units, with an average global market price of around 20 US$/Unit. The production capacity of Push Walker reaches 19,500 k units, and the industry's gross profit margin is approximately between 20% and 40%.

The market demand for push walkers is primarily driven by a combination of factors, including the popularization of scientific parenting concepts, parents' emphasis on infants' gross motor development, the restrictions or bans on seated walkers in many countries due to safety concerns, and product feature upgrades. As pediatric experts and authoritative institutions widely recommend push-type designs as a safer and more natural developmental aid for toddlers, more and more parents are choosing such products. At the same time, the new generation of parents is focusing on early education, prompting manufacturers to integrate intelligent designs such as sensory stimulation, cognitive games, and adjustable resistance on the basis of stability.

This report studies the global Push Walker production, demand, key manufacturers, and key regions.
