Abstracts

The global Radiation Therapy Positioning Device market size is expected to reach $ 611 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 9.0% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Radiation Therapy Positioning Device comprises the dedicated devices and systems used to place and immobilise patients in a precise and reproducible geometry for radiation treatment delivery. It includes indexed couch tops and overlays, body frames, thermoplastic masks for head and neck, vacuum cushions, breast and lung boards, pelvic and limb supports, laser based alignment aids and related accessories that link the patient physically to the treatment couch and coordinate with room lasers and imaging guidance. Together these products allow clinicians to reproduce the planned treatment position from simulation to daily fractions, control voluntary and involuntary motion, and maintain patient comfort for the duration of each session, while minimising interference with imaging quality and dose distribution so that the planned therapeutic dose can be delivered accurately to the target volume with protection of surrounding organs at risk.
