Abstracts

The global Retail Anti-theft Solutions market size is expected to reach $ 2284 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 7.0% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Retail anti-theft solutions are comprehensive loss prevention systems used in shopping malls, supermarkets, convenience stores, and high-value retail environments. They primarily include Electronic Tags (EAS) systems, Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) anti-theft tags, video surveillance, smart access control, alarms, and data management platforms, enabling functions such as merchandise theft prevention, inventory monitoring, and customer behavior analysis. Upstream raw materials mainly include electronic components, magnetic materials, plastic tags, and metal brackets. Midstream systems are manufactured by system integrators, who handle equipment production, software development, and overall solution integration. Downstream suppliers are mainly large retailers and chain supermarkets, with supermarkets accounting for approximately 50%, apparel retailers 25%, and electronics and other retail 25%. In terms of downstream consumption, new stores and new system deployments account for 60%, while equipment upgrades and maintenance account for 40%. The future lies in the integration of intelligent loss prevention, deep RFID application, cloud data management, and mobile payment. With the digital upgrade of retail and the increasing demand for anti-theft and inventory management, the market presents opportunities for stable growth and increased technological added value.
