Abstracts

Sales tech is defined as a set of tools that help accelerate and enhance sales productivity by enabling sales reps to use their time and customer intelligence as effectively and efficiently as possible. It's important to note how it differs from sales automation and sales enablement. While both are key components of a holistic sales tech stack, they each play a distinct strategic role. Sales automation uses technology to organize and automate your team's most tedious, repeatable tasks—improving efficiency and giving your reps time to focus on closing the deal. Sales enablement, however, comprises the tools, processes, training, and resources an organization provides to increase rep efficiency and success. Sales automation and sales enablement are subsets of sales tech. The sales tech is primarily split into Customer Relationship Management (CRM), Prospecting and Lead Generation, Sales Automation, Sales Reporting and Management, Project Management, etc.

This report studies the global Sales Tech demand, key companies, and key regions.

This report is a detailed and comprehensive analysis of the world market for Sales Tech, and provides market size (US$ million) and Year-over-Year (YoY) growth, considering 2022 as the base year. This report explores demand trends and competition, as well as details the characteristics of Sales Tech that contribute to its increasing demand across many markets.

The global Sales Tech market size is expected to reach $ 103900 million by 2029, rising at a market growth of 15.6% CAGR during the forecast period (2023-2029).

Leading global sales technology players include Salesforce, LinkedIn, HubSpot, Zoho, and Zoominfo. Globally, the top five players have a share of nearly 66 per cent by revenue. North America is the world's largest market with a market share of about 57 percent, followed by Europe and Asia with about 25 percent and 11 percent, respectively. By product type, customer relationship management (CRM) is the largest market segment, with 47 percent share.
