Abstracts

The global Sea Burial Service market size is expected to reach $ 11608 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 7.8% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Sea burial service refers to an integrated funeral service model where, under the premise of complying with laws, regulations, and local funeral management regulations, the deceased's ashes are ecologically treated, and a professional service organization arranges for ships to scatter the ashes at sea in designated waters. This service simultaneously provides an integrated service including application and approval, family transportation, ship scheduling, ceremony planning, ceremonial hosting, and follow-up memorial services. With 'returning to nature, saving land, and environmental protection' as its core concepts, this service is an important supplement to traditional burial and cremation, reflecting modern society's renewed understanding of ecological civilization and the rites of life, while also offering emotional comfort and public environmental value.

As global urbanization accelerates and land resources become increasingly scarce, the spatial and environmental pressures on traditional funeral methods are constantly rising, driving the continued growth in demand for eco-friendly funerals. Sea burial, as a green funeral method with zero land occupation and low carbon emissions, is gradually gaining acceptance, driven by both policy guidance and changing public attitudes, especially showing an accelerated trend of popularization in coastal cities. In the future, the industry will upgrade from basic services to a more systematic, branded, and humanistic experience. It will not only strengthen the sense of ritual and emotional expression, but also integrate digital memorial technologies, such as online memorial platforms, virtual memorial spaces, and digital life archives, to form a composite funeral service ecosystem of 'physical ceremony + digital memorial', becoming an important direction for the green transformation of the modern funeral industry.
