Abstracts

The global Self Service Dog Washes market size is expected to reach $ 2028 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.8% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

To address the limited home grooming facilities, high prices at pet stores, and the growing demand for pet cleaning services driven by the increasing number of pet owners, self-service dog washing services have emerged. Since the rise of the pet economy in the early 21st century and the intensive development of urban pet-keeping spaces, the pet grooming industry has experienced significant growth. Currently, self-service dog washing services have evolved into various types, including smart coin-operated/QR code-activated grooming pods, mobile door-to-door cleaning vehicles, and community-shared pet washing machines. These services are widely used in pet communities, shopping mall pet corners, pet hospitals, and professional pet service institutions, providing pet owners with a convenient, economical, and professional pet cleaning experience.

As a high-potential sector within the pet economy, self-service dog washing services are entering a golden age of development, driven by the continued growth of the pet economy, technological maturity, and consumption upgrades. Enterprises need to enhance their competitiveness through technological innovation, scenario expansion, and supply chain integration, seize the opportunities presented by the transformation towards 'convenience, personalization, and intelligence,' and upgrade from 'equipment providers' to 'service solution providers,' thereby promoting the sustainable development of the industry.
