In 2025, global sales of senior cat food are estimated at approximately 860,000 metric tons, with an average selling price of around USD 4,720 per metric ton. Senior cat foods are formulated for cats aged 7 years and older, emphasizing kidney health, joint support, immune system maintenance, and digestibility. These products typically feature reduced protein load, optimized phosphorus content, added joint-supporting ingredients (such as glucosamine and chondroitin), and prebiotics to support digestive health, targeting the specific nutritional requirements of aging cats. Key distribution channels include household retail, specialty pet stores, and e-commerce platforms.

From a market perspective, senior cat food represents a functional and lifecycle-specific segment within the pet food market, with demand closely tied to the age profile of the pet population.
