Abstracts

The global Ship Cabin Cleaning Services market size is expected to reach $ 1866 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 4.8% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

To address the problems of low efficiency, incomplete cleaning, high labor intensity, and safety hazards associated with traditional manual cleaning of ship cabins, ship cabin cleaning services have emerged. Since its gradual professionalization in the late 20th century, this service has evolved from simple manual cleaning to a comprehensive service system encompassing high-pressure water jets, automated cleaning robots, environmentally friendly cleaning agents, and full-process waste recycling and treatment. Currently, ship cabin cleaning services are widely used in ocean shipping, shipbuilding and repair, marine engineering, and special vessel support, becoming a professional maritime support service that significantly improves cleaning quality, ensures cabin environmental safety, complies with environmental regulations, and reduces operating costs.
