Abstracts

The global Short Acting NRT Products market size is expected to reach $ 2676 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.5% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Short-acting Nicotine Replacement Therapy (NRT) products are fast-acting treatments designed to help people manage sudden cravings and withdrawal symptoms during smoking cessation. These products, which include nicotine gum, lozenges, nasal sprays, and oral inhalers, deliver nicotine quickly into the bloodstream to provide immediate relief. Unlike long-acting NRTs like patches, short-acting forms can be used as needed throughout the day, offering more flexible and responsive support during the quitting process. They are often used in combination with other NRTs for more effective smoking cessation.

The growth of the Short-acting Nicotine Replacement Products market is primarily driven by the continued increase in smoking cessation demand worldwide and the rising need for products that can quickly relieve nicotine cravings and withdrawal symptoms. Short-acting products such as nicotine gums, lozenges, oral sprays, nasal sprays, and inhalers offer relatively rapid onset of action, flexible dosing, convenient on-demand use, and good portability, making them particularly suitable for managing sudden cravings during the quitting process. In addition, growing clinical acceptance of combination approaches that pair long-acting nicotine patches with short-acting nicotine replacement products is further expanding their use. Wider OTC availability, the rapid development of online pharmacies and e-commerce channels, and improved product accessibility are also supporting market adoption. Meanwhile, continued innovation in dosage strength, flavors, dosage forms, release speed, and overall user experience is broadening the addressable consumer base and application scenarios, thereby
