Short dramas, also known as "micro-dramas" or "mini-theaters," refer to a new type of film and television format where each episode is shorter than a traditional TV series, has lower production costs, is primarily distributed via vertical screen on mobile phones, and involves online influencers in production. Micro-dramas are defined as episodes less than 10 minutes long, becoming the fourth officially recognized form of online film and television work after web dramas, web movies, and web animations. The vertical screen short drama industry chain is a complete ecosystem centered on content production, encompassing technical support, platform distribution, user consumption, and derivative services. Its links are closely interconnected, forming a closed loop from creation to monetization.

Vertical Screen Short Drama Industry Chain Analysis: The upstream mainly consists of IP copyright holders. IP copyright holders provide their own IP resources to short drama producers, who then adapt them into short drama scripts. Currently, short drama IP sources include novels, comics, and games. Due to the compact plot characteristics of short dramas, they highly align with online "fast-paced" novels. Among the types of short drama IP copyright holders, online literature institutions account for nearly half due to their content reserves.

The midstream mainly consists of short drama production companies, which are primarily responsible for connecting with upstream resources, rewriting scripts, filming, and post-production, transforming content into online micro-dramas. These short drama production companies are mainly transformed from information flow companies, traditional film and television companies, and MCN companies, as well as some IP copyright companies. Companies include: Mango TV, Huace Film & Television, Linmon Media, Jiaxing Jiuzhou Cultural Media Co., Ltd., and Dianzhong Technology Co., Ltd. Currently, the cost of producing a vertical-screen short drama is approximately $120,000-$150,000 per episode, but the midstream portion only accounts for 10%-15% of the overall industry chain revenue.

The downstream mainly consists of content distributors and streaming providers, primarily responsible for video distribution, traffic generation, and monetization. These include ReelShort, DramaBox, TopShort, FlexTV (Mega Matrix), GoodShort, and ShortTV. Currently, mainstream content distribution platforms include short video platforms, short video mini-programs, long video platforms, and independent short drama apps. Short video platforms are the primary reach, using story clips to attract users and form a closed-loop content consumption cycle. These platforms inherently possess advantages in developing micro-dramas, with a relatively higher degree of content compatibility, making them crucial channels for user acquisition and viewing. They also account for the largest share of revenue in the entire industry chain, approximately 80%-85%.

Short drama overseas applications refer to digital entertainment platforms that promote Chinese-made short dramas to the international market for overseas audiences to watch and consume. These platforms meet the demand for fresh content from overseas audiences through translation, localization, or directly launching popular domestic short dramas, while simultaneously promoting the international dissemination of Chinese culture. This report refers to all platforms used for short drama distribution. Short drama overseas applications belong to the downstream industry, with a gross profit margin as high as 60%.

Short dramas usually refer to vertical screen mini-series with short episodes and fast plot development. They are generally low-cost and short-cycle, and quickly attract users with dramatic plots. Riding on the trend of short videos sweeping the world, short dramas will usher in rapid growth in the domestic and overseas markets in 2023. In June 2023, "ReelShort" became a hit in the overseas market, and the leading online literature export manufacturers have entered the short drama export track. Currently, the daily recharge consumption of paid micro-dramas across all domestic platforms is around 60 million yuan. According to the "2023 China Online Audiovisual Development Research Report," in the past six months, among my country's over 1 billion short video users, 50.4% have watched micro-dramas, micro-variety shows, and short-form anime series of three minutes or less. Fast-paced, high-density, and exaggerated plots are the biggest characteristics of micro-dramas, and also their key to success. Data from Tianyancha shows that there are currently over 230 micro-drama-related companies nationwide, with over 30 newly registered companies from January to October 2023, a 225% increase compared to 2022. As of June 2025, the number of micro-drama users nationwide has reached 696 million, accounting for nearly 70% of the total number of internet users. From a cultural perspective, micro-dramas have gradually become an important form of popular culture. From January to August 2025, major comprehensive video platforms launched 325 horizontal-screen micro-dramas (a year-on-year increase of 24.52%). The number of vertical-screen dramas launched on short video platforms, mini-programs, and micro-drama apps has also increased, with the total number of independently produced and launched vertical-screen dramas expected to reach approximately 40,000 in 2025. Media reports indicate that as of December 2024, 202 overseas short-drama apps had been launched in overseas markets. Viewers in Europe, America, and Southeast Asia show relatively high viewing and payment intentions.
