Situational judgement test (SJT) is a psychometric test designed to assess an individual"s response to various workplace scenarios. SJTs present test-takers with realistic work-related situations and ask them to choose the most appropriate course of action from a list of options. These tests evaluate an individual"s judgment, decision-making skills, problem-solving abilities, and alignment with desired organizational values. SJTs are commonly used in recruitment processes to determine how candidates handle workplace challenges and make ethical and practical judgments.
