Abstracts

The global Sod Peeler market size is expected to reach $ 773 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.3% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

A sod peeler is a type of garden machinery used for lawn and turf management, capable of neatly cutting and peeling away the turf and soil layer of a certain thickness. This equipment is primarily used in lawn renovation, sports field upgrades, golf course maintenance, and landscape reconstruction projects. Sod peelers typically use horizontal blades or a rotary cutting system to cut the turf at a set depth, lifting it in strips or sheets for easy removal and handling. This equipment plays a crucial role in lawn restoration, irrigation system upgrades, and drainage system improvements. The upstream of the sod peeler industry chain mainly includes suppliers of steel blades, cutting systems, engines or motors, hydraulic components, and structural frames. The midstream consists of complete machine manufacturers responsible for equipment structural design, cutting depth control systems, and operational control system integration. Downstream applications mainly include garden construction contractors, golf course maintenance companies, sports field operators, municipal greening departments, and landscape engineering companies. Products are primarily sold through professional garden equipment dealers, agricultural machinery suppliers, and industrial equipment channels. In 2025, the global production of sod peelers was approximately 452,000 units, with a global average market price of approximately US$1,150 per unit. The gross profit margin of major companies in the industry is approximately 25%-40%. The global production capacity of turf cutters is estimated to be approximately 603,000 units in 2025.
