SPV is a special entity that accepts a promoter's portfolio and issues securities backed by it. The original concept of SPV comes from the risk isolation design of the firewall, and its design is mainly to achieve the purpose of 'bankruptcy isolation'. The business scope of SPV is strictly limited, so it is a high credit rating entity that generally will not go bankrupt. SPV has a special status in asset securitization. It is the core of the entire asset securitization process, and all participants will work around it. SPV has two main forms: special purpose company (Special Purpose Company, SPC) and special purpose trust (Special Purpose Trust, SPT).
