Hatch cover tape is a sealing material specially designed for hatch covers of ships, containers and other means of transport. It is usually made of high-strength, wear-resistant and corrosion-resistant synthetic materials such as polyester, polyvinyl chloride (PVC) or rubber to ensure reliable sealing in various harsh environments. The main function of hatch cover tape is to prevent the intrusion of moisture, dust, gas or other harmful substances, thereby protecting the cargo in the cabin from damage. This tape not only has excellent weather resistance and chemical corrosion resistance, but also can adapt to hatch covers of various shapes and sizes to ensure the best sealing effect. In practical applications, hatch cover tape is widely used in ship transportation, container logistics and other fields, and is an important part of ensuring cargo safety and transportation efficiency.
