Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Supplement CDMO market size was valued at US$ 38858 million in 2025 and is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ 59586 million by 2032 with a CAGR of 6.3% during review period.

Supplement CDMO refers to a professional organization that provides one-stop outsourcing services such as R&D, formula optimization, clinical trial support, large-scale production and packaging for health products (such as dietary supplements, functional foods, nutritional preparations, etc.). This model helps brands reduce R&D investment, accelerate product launch, and meet compliance requirements in the global market.

The outlook for the dietary supplement CDMO industry is generally positive, driven by sustained global demand for dietary supplements, functional foods, sports nutrition, healthy aging solutions, and personalized nutrition. To reduce capital investment in in-house production lines and shorten time-to-market for new products—while also navigating complex requirements such as formulation development, raw material screening, stability testing, regulatory compliance, and multi-dosage form manufacturing—brand owners are increasingly outsourcing R&D, pilot production, large-scale manufacturing, and packaging services to specialized CDMOs. Future industry growth will be increasingly concentrated in high-value-added segments—including softgels, hard capsules, tablets, powders, gummies, liquids, and complex dosage forms—alongside continued market expansion for products based on plant extracts, probiotics, proteins, vitamins and minerals, and functional active ingredients. As markets in the US, Europe, and Asia raise standards for quality traceability, GMP certification, clean-label attributes, and supply chain transparency, large-scale CDMOs possessing robust R&D capabilities, regulatory support, mass production capacity, and
