Tax due diligence is a professional analytical process that systematically reviews the target company's historical and current tax status before major transactions such as mergers and acquisitions (M&A), investments, restructurings, or IPOs. Its core purpose is to identify potential tax risks, undisclosed tax liabilities, compliance deficiencies, and tax optimization opportunities, and to assess their impact on transaction valuation, structural design, and risk-sharing mechanisms. This process typically covers corporate income tax, value-added tax/sales tax, transfer pricing, cross-border tax arrangements, use of tax incentives, and historical tax audits, ultimately producing a tax risk report and transaction recommendations.

With the increase in global cross-border M&A activity, stricter tax regulations, and the prevalence of complex corporate operating structures, tax due diligence is evolving from a traditional 'compliance review tool' into a core risk control module for transaction decisions. Its demand will continue to grow in the future, particularly in private equity, cross-border M&A, and the technology and healthcare industries. Simultaneously, AI and big data technologies are driving the automation of tax due diligence, gradually shifting it from being driven by human experience to a data-driven and intelligent risk control system.
