Trailer designs tend to offer more storage space to accommodate a variety of equipment and items. Some trailers also have quick setup features that make them easy to erect and dismantle. There are various types of trailers for RVs available in the market, including small models, large models, family models, luxury models, off-road models, and all-season models to meet the needs of different travellers. Manufacturers are constantly improving the safety features of trailers, including upgraded braking systems, stability control, tyre pressure monitoring and airbags.
