Underbalanced and managed pressure drilling services are technologies that precisely manage wellbore pressure during drilling, aiming to improve drilling efficiency and safety. Underbalanced drilling reduces formation damage and increases oil and gas recovery by controlling bottomhole pressure below formation pressure; managed pressure drilling adjusts wellbore pressure in real time under conditions of narrow pressure windows or complex formations to avoid risks such as kicks, leaks and well collapse. This service is widely used in challenging development environments such as complex formations, unconventional oil and gas fields, and high-temperature, high-pressure and deepwater oil fields.
