Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Used Book Site market size was valued at US$ 2480 million in 2025 and is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ 3567 million by 2032 with a CAGR of 5.3% during review period.

Used book websites are online platform services centered on the resale of printed books. They primarily provide services such as buying, selling, consignment, recycling, valuation, auctions, inventory updates, condition grading, payment settlement, warehousing and delivery, and after-sales support for individual readers, students, used booksellers, independent bookstores, libraries, non-profit recycling organizations, and collectors through websites, mobile apps, online marketplaces, transaction matching systems, or self-operated recycling and resale systems.

From a demand structure perspective, the growth of secondhand book platforms mainly stems from four types of demand: demand for low-priced reading, demand for textbook cost control, demand for searching out-of-print/rare books, and demand for sustainable consumption. The textbook market exhibits a clear seasonality, with users prioritizing price comparisons, bulk sales, free shipping, and fast payment. General reading scenarios prioritize low prices, condition, and logistics. Antique and collectible book scenarios rely on seller expertise, version identification, and search coverage. In recent years, book prices, student textbook costs, sustainable consumption, and circular economy awareness have collectively driven the continued online movement of secondhand book transactions. However, the diversion of traffic by ebooks, open educational resources, and comprehensive secondhand platforms is also squeezing the growth potential of some platforms. Therefore, vertical platforms are more likely to differentiate themselves in the future by strengthening quality control, pricing algorithms, inventory depth, membership systems, cross-border distribution, and offline recycling networks, rather than simply relying on low-price competition.
