Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Vegan Beauty Cosmetics market size was valued at USD 13020 million in 2023 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 20890 million by 2030 with a CAGR of 7.0% during review period.

Vegan beauty products and cosmetics do not contain any animal products, animal by-products, or animal derivatives.

The rapid growth of the vegan beauty market is influenced by multiple drivers that reflect changing consumer preferences and rising environmental awareness. Here are some of the key vegan beauty market drivers:

Health and environmental awareness: More and more consumers are concerned about their health and the environment, and they prefer to choose natural, organic, and vegetarian beauty products to avoid chemical ingredients and reduce testing on animals.

Social Trends: Vegetarianism and vegetarian lifestyles are becoming increasingly popular around the world. Consumers recognize the health and sustainability benefits of a vegan diet and are therefore willing to choose vegan products in their beauty products.

Ethical and moral considerations: Demand for vegan beauty products is driven by growing consumer concerns about animal rights and a desire to avoid cosmetics tested on animals.

Innovative Vegan Formulations: The beauty industry continues to innovate with new vegan products that may contain beneficial plant extracts, vitamins, antioxidants, etc. to meet the high demands of skin care.

Social media and influencers: Social media and beauty influencers can spread information quickly, driving consumer interest in vegan beauty products.

Together, these factors are driving growth in the vegan beauty market, giving consumers more choices to meet their health, ethical and environmental needs. This market is expected to continue to boom over time.
