Abstracts

The global Veterinary Care Pet Service market size is expected to reach $ 135106 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 6.9% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

The gross profit margin of major companies in the industry is between 18%-35%.

Veterinary Care Pet Service refers to professional medical and nursing services provided for companion animals, including diagnosis, vaccination, routine checkups, surgery, dental care, laboratory testing, imaging, emergency treatment, rehabilitation, and chronic disease management. It supports pet health maintenance, disease prevention, treatment, and long-term wellbeing across household and specialty pet categories.

The industrial chain of Veterinary Care Pet Service covers upstream supplies such as veterinary drugs, vaccines, diagnostic reagents, surgical instruments, imaging equipment, laboratory devices, consumables, and digital management systems. The midstream consists of animal hospitals, clinics, emergency centers, diagnostic centers, rehabilitation facilities, and mobile veterinary services. Downstream demand mainly comes from pet owners, shelters, breeders, pet insurance users, pet care platforms, and companion animal health management programs.

The booming pet economy and rising pet health awareness continuously expand the market scale of veterinary care pet services. It covers physical examination, disease treatment and daily health care to meet all-round pet medical needs. Standardized service processes and professional team construction become the main development direction of the industry.

This report studies the global Veterinary Care Pet Service demand, key companies, and key regions.
