Abstracts

The global Vtuber (Virtual YouTuber) market size is expected to reach $ 22410 million by 2029, rising at a market growth of 34.0% CAGR during the forecast period (2023-2029).

Global key players of vtuber (virtual youtuber) include AnyColor, Cover Group, Bilibili, Youtube, 774, inc, etc. The top five players hold a share about 17%. Asia-Pacific is the largest market, has a share about 74%, followed by North America and Europe, with share 12% and 11%, separately.

A VTuber, or virtual YouTuber, is an online entertainer who uses a virtual model generated using computer graphics. Real-time motion capture software or technology are often—but not always—used to capture movement. A digital trend that originated in Japan in the mid-2010s and, since the early 2020s, has become an international online phenomenon. A majority of VTubers are English and Japanese-speaking YouTubers or live streamers who use model designs. By 2020, there were more than 10,000 active VTubers. Although the term is an allusion to the video platform YouTube, they also use websites such as Niconico, Twitch, and Bilibili. The first entertainer to use the phrase 'virtual YouTuber', Kizuna AI, began creating content on YouTube in late 2016. Her popularity sparked a VTuber trend in Japan, and spurred the establishment of specialized agencies to promote them, including major ones such as Hololive Production (Cover), AnyColor, etc. Fan translations and foreign-language VTubers have marked a rise in the trend's international popularity. Virtual YouTubers have appeared in domestic advertising campaigns, and have broken livestream-related world records.
