Abstracts

Zirconium (Zr) is a grayish-white chemical element sourced from mineral zircon ($ZrSiO_4$) sand. It is strong, ductile, malleable, and extremely resistant to heat and corrosion by other agents in nature. It is very weak in absorbing thermal neutrons. Therefore, zirconium alloys are used in fuel cladding. Zirconium is widely used in various applications such as ceramics, chemicals, refractory, foundry, and television glass.

SCOPE OF THE REPORT:

This report focuses on the Zirconium in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. According to the report, augmented demand from ceramics industry is a key driver aiding to the growth of this market. The global ceramics industry is expected to grow at a rapid rate during the forecast period. This industry is primarily driven by the construction industry. The residential segment of the construction industry uses ceramics in sanitary ware, ceramic tiles, table and ornamental ware, bricks, and pipes. Moreover, the growth in housing prices over the last few years indicates the growing investment in the housing market by consumers. This implies that there is ample opportunity for the growth of the ceramics industry, which is a key end-user segment of the zirconium market.

The worldwide market for Zirconium is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
