Abstracts

Growing demand for models made of sustainable and environment-friendly materials is driving the growth of the footwear industry in Nepal. The sector is able to capture a niche market as it emphasizes items that adopt wool, hemp and other natural components, in addition to conventional inputs such as leather.

Export revenue has been progressively rising every year since 2010. Because of the increasing popularity of products constructed using eco-friendly inputs, many suppliers are planning to broaden their market reach in alternative destinations such as Australia.

A number of challenges confront the footwear industry, ranging from labor shortage to inadequate infrastructure. Nonetheless, it is considered one of Nepal's brightest in terms of potential, and is expected to keep its status as a key export earner over the next few years.

This report focuses on the main types of footwear from Nepal – leather, woolen and natural fiber footwear.
