Abstracts

The home furnishings industry in Vietnam is enjoying stable development stemming from healthy overseas demand, and government and international support. Exports in recent years have been progressively improving, and the sector expects to maintain its progress over the short term.

Although growth so far this year has slowed slightly, the industry is optimistic of surpassing revenue generated in 2012. This is mainly because of strong demand for home textiles and bedding in traditional and emerging destinations. Ceramics is another segment with considerable potential for expansion, especially with the US becoming its fastest-growing market in the first half of 2013.

The sector benefits from a number of strengths. One of these is lower production costs compared with those in other supply zones in Asia.

This report focuses on the main types of home furnishings from Vietnam – home textiles, bedding and home accents.

This Vietnam Sourcing Report is part of the Developing Country Sourcing Report series designed to provide buyers with information on new products from export manufacturers in Southeast Asia that specialize in handmade merchandise.

Global Sources is offering Developing Country Sourcing Reports as part of its corporate social responsibility undertakings in partnership with the Hinrich Foundation, a philanthropic development organization whose mission is promoting sustainable global trade.

About

Vietnam's home furnishings line is on a steady growth track, buoyed by a robust handicrafts segment. National policies aimed at strengthening fiscal controls have helped offset the trade deficit in recent years. With the government shifting focus from macroeconomic development to domestic stabilization, overall exports are picking up, rising 18 percent in 2012.

Foreign buyers now turn to the country for goods sourced previously from China and India. Last year, the shift infused an additional $100 million into the industry, according to the Vietnam Handicraft Exporters Association or Vietcraft.

Vietnam's handicrafts segment has overtaken that of India and is now Asia's second-biggest after China. Low production costs and a stable supply of environment-friendly materials are some of its competitive advantages.

Exports

The growth of Vietnam's handicrafts industry slowed to 7 percent in the first seven months of this year due to the residual effects of the global economic crisis. Despite the drop, total overseas sales are likely to exceed $2.5 billion by yearend.

Home furnishings are part of the broader handicrafts industry. The former encompasses several product segments including household textiles and bedding, which is the sector's highest earner. The line registered $800 million in total foreign revenue last year.

Japan is the main market, as it accounts for 20 percent of exports. The US and South Korea each absorb 10 percent.

Ceramics is another product category within the industry. It generated $440 million in overseas revenue last year, which is 19 percent higher than the previous period. In the first seven months of 2013, foreign sales climbed approximately 6 percent, reaching $255 million.

The lack of industry-wide design and technology development initiatives is likewise hindering the line's expansion.

Suppliers in Vietnam admit to a shortfall in innovation and an inability to keep abreast of international trends. As such, the range of designs is limited and primarily dictated by traditional and native styles.
