Abstracts

The global automated media preparation systems market size was valued at USD 1.05 billion in 2025 and is projected to reach USD 2.27 billion by 2033, expanding at a CAGR of 10.35% from 2026 to 2033. The growth is primarily driven by the rising demand for laboratory automation, increasing microbiological testing across pharmaceutical, food safety, and clinical diagnostics sectors, and the need to minimize human error in media preparation workflows.

Need for Laboratory Efficiency & Productivity

The growing need for laboratory efficiency is driving demand for automated media preparation systems. Traditional preparation involves multiple manual, time-intensive steps that create bottlenecks in high-throughput labs. Automated systems streamline these processes into a single platform, reducing preparation time, minimizing manual effort, and enabling continuous batch processing.

Automated media preparation systems support standardized workflows, rapid large-volume production, and high-throughput processing with minimal downtime. This improves workforce efficiency, lowers operational costs, and helps laboratories meet strict turnaround requirements, strengthening their role in modern, automation-driven lab environments.

Rising Biopharmaceutical & Life-Science Research

The rapid growth of biopharmaceutical and life-science research is driving demand for automated media preparation systems. Increasing development of biologics, vaccines, monoclonal antibodies, and cell- and gene-based therapies has raised the need for large volumes of sterile, high-quality culture media. These systems help laboratories ensure consistent formulation, maintain sterility, and support large-scale production without workflow disruptions.
