Abstracts

The global coated abrasives market size was valued at USD 14.4 billion in 2025 and is projected to grow from USD 15.2 billion in 2026 to USD 21.4 billion by 2033, at a CAGR of 5.0% from 2026 to 2033. Asia Pacific dominated the market, accounting for the largest revenue share of 52.9% in 2025. Coated abrasives are abrasive products made by bonding abrasive grains, such as aluminum oxide, silicon carbide, zirconia alumina, or ceramic grains, onto a flexible backing material such as paper, cloth, polyester, or fiber. They are primarily used for material removal, surface finishing, grinding, polishing, deburring, and surface preparation across industries such as automotive, aerospace, metal fabrication, woodworking, construction, and electronics.

The growth of the global coated abrasives market is primarily driven by the expansion of automotive, metal fabrication, machinery, aerospace, and construction industries, where coated abrasives are extensively used for grinding, polishing, deburring, sanding, and surface finishing. Rising vehicle production and increasing manufacturing of precision metal components are creating sustained demand for high-performance abrasive products. The growing use of stainless steel, aluminum, engineered wood, and other advanced materials is further increasing the need for abrasives that deliver consistent finishes and efficient material removal.

Another important growth driver is the increasing adoption of automated manufacturing, robotics, and precision finishing processes. Manufacturers are increasingly seeking coated abrasives that provide longer service life, faster material removal, improved surface quality, and lower operating costs, supporting demand for advanced ceramic and engineered abrasive grains. In addition, growing industrialization in emerging economies, particularly across the Asia Pacific, is expanding manufacturing capacity and infrastructure, thereby increasing the consumption of coated abrasives in metalworking, automotive, woodworking, electronics, and general industrial applications.
