The global disruptive behavior disorder treatment market size is expected to reach USD 24.0 billion by 2026, according to a new report by Grand View Research, Inc. The market is projected to expand at a CAGR of 4.9% during the estimated period. Increasing cases of substance abuse across the globe are considered to be the key factors driving the market. Drug abuse is one of the major causes for acquiring oppositional defiant and conduct disorder as it enhances the symptoms for such conditions. Rising prevalence of mental disorders among children and teenagers is leading to increased awareness regarding the associated treatments, there by augmenting the market growth.

For instance, according to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), globally, around 3.0% of children suffer from Oppositional Defiant Disorder (ODD) and around 8.0% of children suffer from Conduct Disorder (CD) per year. In recent times, majority of the parents of children aged between 5 and 14 years have undergone workshops and trainings for the treatment of above-mentioned conditions. Several hospitals, clinics, and institutes are organizing campaigns to create awareness about the relevant treatments among parents and physicians. For instance, the Child Mind Institute, Inc., organized a campaign named Speak Up for Kids, in May 2018, where children's mental health issues and various treatments and policies related to these disorders were discussed. Therefore, such initiatives are expected to bolster the market growth over the forecast period.

Further key findings from the study suggest:

In terms of revenue, oppositional defiant disorder segment is projected to ascend at a CAGR of 5.4% over the forecast period

Increasing prevalence of such problems and awareness regarding their treatments will drive this segment

Parenting therapy is expected to witness the fastest growth over the forecast period

Frequent recommendation of parenting therapy by doctors, as it allows rapid recovery and is easy to follow, is expected to drive the segment

Asia-Pacific market is expected to witness the fastest growth over the forecast period owing to the increasing cases of substance abuse
