Medical Foam Market Growth & Trends

The global medical foam market size is anticipated to reach USD 37.9 billion by 2027, according to a report by Grand View Research, Inc., registering a CAGR of 7.5% over the forecast period. The rising product demand from the bedding & cushioning, medical devices, packaging, and a few other application segments are expected to propel market growth. Moreover, the need for better healthcare facilities coupled with a rising number of hospitals has boosted the product demand in medical devices application, which is anticipated to drive the market over the forecast period.

Medical foams are lightweight and have high flexibility, absorbency, and durability. Moreover, they offer excellent stain and fungal resistance and impact absorption. Due to these characteristics, medical foams are widely used in the healthcare sector in medical packaging, prosthetic padding, bedding and cushioning, wound dressing, medical aids, etc., which is also projected to drive the market.

Asia Pacific is expected to be the fastest-growing regional market owing to the increasing demand for high-quality medical devices and components from hospitals in major economies, such as China, India, and Singapore. Furthermore, the rising expenditure of various governments on public & private health systems and the growing geriatric population are fueling the demand for improved healthcare services and infrastructure, which, in turn, is expected to propel the product demand in the coming years.
