Personal Development Market Growth & Trends

The global personal development market size is estimated to reach USD 67.02 billion by 2030, growing at a CAGR of 5.5% from 2022 to 2030, according to a new report by Grand View Research, Inc. The growing popularity of technology-driven, self-growth platforms among youngsters is expected to drive the growth of the market over the forecast period. The strong emphasis employees are putting on improving their domain expertise and communication skills to meet the quality standards set by their employers is expected to contribute to the market growth.

Personal development covers several facets of self-improvement and self-growth on both individual and professional fronts. It includes lectures, courses, conferences, webinars, books, e-books, and personal coaching. These courses help individuals in developing their aptitude, critical thinking and decision-making capabilities, and physical and mental health.

Advances in digital technologies are allowing individuals to undertake self-growth programs irrespective of their geographical location. Key market participants such as Franklin Covey Co., Omega Institute, Toastmasters International, and SkillPath are offering self-improvement programs globally through various online methods, including on-demand courses, audiobooks, podcasts, and e-books, as part of their efforts to broaden their user base.

The outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic has triggered the demand for online self-growth programs. Lockdowns and restrictions on the movement of people imposed by governments worldwide have prompted individuals to opt for online courses to acquire new skills and improve their wellbeing. Moreover, advances in the latest technologies, including Artificial Intelligence (AI), Virtual Positioning System (VPS), and Virtual Reality (VR), enable individuals to undertake self-development courses according to their convenience and preference.
