Abstracts

The global solid waste management market size was estimated at USD 650.6 billion in 2025 and is expected to reach USD 1,007.7 billion by 2033, growing at a CAGR of 5.7% from 2026 to 2033. The market growth can be attributed to the increasing urbanization and population growth, which are leading to higher volumes of municipal solid waste.

As cities expand and consumption levels rise, municipalities are under increasing pressure to develop efficient waste collection, treatment, and disposal systems. This growing waste generation is encouraging governments and private operators to invest in modern waste management infrastructure and technologies. Governments across many countries are implementing stricter environmental regulations related to waste disposal and landfill management, encouraging the adoption of recycling and waste treatment solutions. In addition, rising public awareness regarding environmental protection and sustainable waste practices is increasing demand for organized waste collection, recycling programs, and waste processing facilities.
