Suppository Packaging Market Summary

The global suppository packaging market size was valued at USD 580.1 million in 2025 and is projected to grow from USD 612.3 million in 2026 to USD 911.0 million by 2033, at a CAGR of 5.8% from 2026 to 2033. Europe dominated the suppository packaging market with the largest revenue share of 33.02% in 2025.

Suppository packaging is commonly used in rectal and vaginal drug delivery applications for unit-dose and moisture-sensitive pharmaceutical products due to its hygienic sealing, dosage accuracy, and barrier protection. Rising demand for non-oral drug delivery systems, increasing prevalence of gastrointestinal disorders, stringent pharmaceutical safety regulations, and growing adoption of high-barrier packaging materials are further driving market growth.

Single-dose packaging is witnessing significant demand in the suppository packaging market due to the increasing focus on hygiene, dosage accuracy, patient safety, and contamination prevention in pharmaceutical applications. These packaging formats are widely used for rectal and vaginal suppositories as they provide unit-dose convenience, improved product stability, and enhanced portability. Rising regulatory emphasis on tamper-evident pharmaceutical packaging, along with growing demand for patient-compliant and easy-to-use drug delivery formats, is further driving the adoption of single-dose suppository packaging solutions.

Multi-dose packaging is gaining traction owing to its cost-effectiveness and suitability for long-term treatment applications in hospitals, clinics, and home healthcare settings. Pharmaceutical manufacturers are increasingly adopting multi-dose formats to reduce packaging costs, improve storage efficiency, and support bulk dispensing requirements. Growing demand for chronic disease management therapies, expanding pharmaceutical production capacities, and rising healthcare expenditure in emerging economies are further contributing to the growth of multi-dose suppository packaging.
