Abstracts

Dental bonding agents are adhesive materials used in dentistry to bond restorative materials, such as composite resin, to teeth. They are commonly used in cosmetic dentistry for procedures such as filling cavities, repairing chips and cracks, and improving the appearance of discolored or misshapen teeth. The global Dental Bonding Agents market is estimated to be worth US$14700 million in 2022, with a compound annual growth rate of 7.9%. The demand for dental bonding agents is driven by factors such as the growing number of dental clinics and hospitals and increasing investment in dental healthcare services.

Dental bonding agents are primarily used in restorative dentistry, where they are used to bond fillings, veneers, or other dental restorations to teeth. They provide a strong and durable bond between the restorative material and the tooth, ensuring that it stays in place and functions correctly. Dental bonding agents are also used in cosmetic dentistry to improve the appearance of teeth by bonding tooth-colored composite resins to the tooth surface.

The Dental Bonding Agents industry has witnessed significant growth due to increasing demand for dental services. The industry is supported by several leading global manufacturers, including DMG, GC America, DenMat, Pentron, Dentsply Caulk, 3M, Bisco, Coltene/Whaledent, Voco, Kuraray, Ivoclar Vivadent, Cosmedent, and Parkell. These companies invest heavily in research and development to introduce new products, improve manufacturing processes, and expand their distribution networks.

The global Dental Bonding Agents market is expected to grow due to the rising demand for dental services and the increasing number of dental clinics worldwide. The market size is projected to be worth US$14700 million in 2022, with a compound annual growth
