Branding Context is changing - From Controlled Broadcast to Connected Real-time conversation. Customers are participating in Social Networks, creating and sharing content, communicating and building relationships with each other. These customer-to-customer (C2C) interactions are extremely powerful marketing tools, if tapped into in the right way. As it is Real –Time and on Open sharing platform, it is very critical to get into a Social branding with effective Planning and Strategy.

Social Networking is the grouping of individuals into specific groups, like small rural communities or a neighbourhood subdivision, if you will. Although Social Networking is possible in person, especially in the workplace, universities, and high schools, it is most popular online. This is because unlike most high schools, colleges, or workplaces, the Internet is filled with millions of individuals who are looking to meet other people, to gather and share first-hand information and experiences about any number of topics from golfing, gardening, developing friendships and professional alliances. The appropriate use of the right tools can ensure better access, strengthen interactions, increase learning, and improve satisfaction, all in a generally cost-effective manner. Software which acts as a tool for enhancing productivity and better experience from Social Networking sites are classified as Social Software Tools.

A Social Tool supports or initiates real-time social interaction as conversations, collaboration and knowledge-sharing. All possible signals and stimuli for interaction can be grouped into a handful of social factors, which are keys to build Social Software. These are the factors that transform software or website into a Social Software, Social Tool or a Social Website. Or they will convert a general environment into a social environment.

Today's Social Software Tools or Social Tools have enabled Social Networks to realize many of Sir Tim Berners-Lee's original ambitions for the Web as a rich collaborative communication medium, and not just a top-down format for online publishing. It's the way the 21st century communicates now, evident from the substantial growth (or say exponential growth) in number of people using Social Software. Conversation, Access, Usability, Engagement, Authenticity, Participation, Collaboration, Openness, Access to Information, Creativity, Passionate Interest and Personal Expression, Discussion, Asynchronous Contribution, Pro-activity and Critical Thinking are some of the critical aspects of Social Networking.

There are more than 800Mn users on Facebook and millions on Twitter, Google Plus and LinkedIn, just for starters. In 2011 number of Social Networking users is around 1.2Bn which is 54 per cent of Internet users. The number will grow to 1.5Bn by 2015 and 2.7Bn by 2020. Total social networking and social media accounts at present is close to 3Bn and will be growing to 6.8Bn by 2015 and around 11.5Bn by 2020. With emergence of new players delivering specific feature or creating communities targeting niche the number of accounts per user is also increasing substantially. For businesses this is a god send. Some of the Social Networking users just might be in target audience of those providing products or services as well. They can engage with them on Social sites to heighten brand awareness, spread their message, drive traffic to their website and boost search engine rankings, awareness and affinity. They can deepen the relationship with customers and their social connections on many levels and over time at a remarkably little cost.

Social Branding revenue which comprises of Social Branding Services and Tools is currently close to $.7Bn will grow at a rapid rate to reach $3Bn by 2015 and will further grow to $13.8Bn by 2020. Social Branding Strategy and Outlook - South East Asia 2012-2015, 2nd Edition provides a detailed analysis of Social Branding with focus on South East Asia market.

Overview

The Internet has always been a social medium. It is unique because it is the first many-to-many communication channel, while the telephone is one-to-one and broadcast is one-to-many. The Internet is so unique because it has always been all about a common man being able to communicate with the rest of the mankind. As e-mail became more ubiquitous, discussion forums sprang up and never went away delivering knowledge to millions and people learned how to build web sites which was cheap and required neither a permit nor an advanced degree. Blogging brought together the power of the conversation with a giant leap forward in ease of use. Flickr and YouTube made uploading pictures and videos a snap. Then Facebooks and Twitters of the social world made opt-in, instant messaging so simple, it couldn't help but catch fire or create a perfect storm. It is the "great playing field leveller", allowing David to square off against the media-controlling Goliath. Internet which was always a hyper drive communication tool has now become a nuclear-powered communication tool on steroids, Technology enabled Social Communication or Social Networking and Social Media in general term.

Social Technology is a tool which allows anybody to communicate with everybody. In other words, audience/consumer-generated content distributed through easy-to-access online tools. Social Technology is capturing media, business, political, and scholarly attention. Hence their spectacular growth and the public attention they command are attracting a significant amount of research and media scrutiny. While the impact of this emerging technology development is huge it is important not to get lost in heaps of data generated on this subject.
