A power cable is an electrical cable, an assembly of one or more electrical conductors, usually held together with an overall sheath. The assembly is used for transmission of electrical power. Power cables may be installed as permanent wiring within buildings, buried in the ground, run overhead, or exposed. Copper and aluminum are the conductor raw materials and polyurethane and polyvinyl chloride is the outer sheath raw materials for the production of cable. Large and medium-sized companies purchase materials from the large-sized raw materials manufacturers. Some small-sized companies need to buy raw materials from distributors. With the development of cable, the raw materials manufacturers are also benefited from the cable industry in some extent. In future, the cable industry in the world will turn dispersed. The world cable consuming market will still has a certain amount of growth. CIS competition is likely to turn to the relationship of competition and cooperation. With the development of economy, cable has huge market potential in the future. Owing to the increasing of demand in cable downstream products, the world cable capacity will continue to expand.
