Coumarin is a fragrant organic chemical compound in the benzopyrone chemical class, which is a colorless crystalline substance in its standard state. It is a natural substance found in many plants. Synthetic coumarin is made with the Perkin reaction of salicylic acid and acetic anhydride. The coumarin has developed very maturely since they were discovered. Now China and India are the two most important producers in the world. The former accounted for approximately 70% of global total production, and the latter with 21% of the global total, in 2015. Since the beginning of this year, the coumarin market is being in short supply in China; on the other hand, Jiangyin Baihui Fragrance (an important Chinese manufacturer previous) quit to produce coumarin, and Zhangjiagang FeiHang industry Co., Ltd. also had cut off overhaul, no timetable for when to resume production. In the future, China and India will keep the development tendency.
