White cement is a powdery material which hardens when mixed with water. It serves as binder for natural and artificially processed aggregates, such as sand and gravel, for production of mortar, plaster and concrete. White cement has essentially the same properties as grey cement, except for color. The whiteness of the cement depends on the raw materials and the manufacturing process. It is the metal oxides primarily iron and manganese that influence the whiteness and undertone of cement. As a value-added product, white cement is increasingly popular in countries with advanced economies. It is widely used in the construction of innovative buildings and future landmarks. White cement is typically exported longer distances than grey cement, which means its production is not limited by domestic demand. Currently, white cement market has a certain potential in USA, Europe, Mid-east and APAC. The demand of these areas is relatively stable. During these years, China's white cement industry maintained a rapid growth. At present, although the profit margins in the industry have a certain decline, but the market demand is still full, so the research group hold optimistic attitude about the industry.
