Abstracts

Abstract:

Fluid management systems are computer-driven and safe. They keep uterine distention balanced, give clear vision and reduce the risk of bleeding entry into the blood vessels. They balance purity, pressure control and measurements of fluid deficit, providing all the information the physician needs to monitor the safety of the patient. Excessive fluid absorption or deficit can be extremely dangerous to the patient, so it is recommended that fluid management systems be used in more complex hysteroscopic procedures where that can occur. These devices assist doctors and nurses in determining uterine distention, fluid deficit and absorption.
