Abstracts

The global point of care testing (POCT) market is predicted to surpass US$ 75.2 Billion by 2030. POCT or near-patient testing is a medical diagnostic test that allows physicians and medical staff to correctly attain real-time, lab-quality diagnostic results within minutes rather than hours. POCT has skyrocketed in the last 20 years, backed by the increasing introduction of transportable, portable, and handheld instruments that has resulted in the migration of POC testing from the hospital environment to a range of medical environments including the workplace, home, disaster care and most recently, convenience clinics.

The demand for accurate and fast testing has blossomed both inside and outside the hospital setting. The rising incidence of infectious diseases and chronic conditions such as cardiovascular diseases and diabetes in developing countries such as India and China have stimulated demand for point of care testing services. As per statistics of the International Diabetes Federation, in 2021, approximately 537 million adults (20-79 years) are living with diabetes globally, and it is estimated to reach 643 million by 2030 and 783 million by 2045. Hence, the growing infectious diseases and chronic conditions will drive the point of care testing market over the forecast period.

By Diagnostics Segment: Global Point of Care Testing Market & Forecast – Key Takeaways

Based on diagnostics segment, the point of care testing market is dominated by blood glucose testing segment. Increasing prevalence of diabetes and the rising inclination of patients towards home testing is the major driver that will drive segmental growth over the forecast timeframe.

The infectious diseases segment held second largest revenue share in 2022. Infectious diseases are the primary cause of mortality globally, and according to figures from the Clinical Microbiology and Infection journal, they claim over 14 million lives annually, making up around 25% of the 56 million deaths recorded worldwide.

Cardiac marker segment is expected to grow at a significant rate over the forecast period. The growing prevalence of cardiovascular ailments, increasing purchasing power, rise in the geriatric population, associated with high susceptibility to chronic diseases related to cardiac disorders, and economical diagnosis of chronic diseases in rural areas is expected to drive the market for cardiac markers.

By Mode: Global Point of Care Testing Market & Forecast – Key Takeaways

On the basis of mode, the point of care testing market is dominated by OTC-based testing segment, as these tests are cost-effective as well as easy operative in nature. These tests do not require skilled professional to perform and can be self-tested by individuals, thereby boosting the market growth.

The Prescription based testing segment is expected to grow at the highest rate over the forecast period.

By Platform: Global Point of Care Testing Market & Forecast – Key Takeaways

By platform, the Lateral Flow Assays (LFA) segment accounted for largest revenue share in 2022. POC tests based on lateral flow assays are increasingly being employed to replace long, conventional laboratory processes.

The point of care testing market for immunoassays technology is expected to witness significant growth over the forecast timeframe. Rapid immunoassays improve quality of care through its performance at point of care facilities, such as student health clinics, labor and delivery suites and emergency rooms. The cost-effectiveness offered by these immunoassays will influence segment growth over the forecast period.

Microfluidic based point-of-care testing provides prompt results and also improves disease detection and diagnosis with the help of small sample volumes.

By End Users: Global Point of Care Testing Market & Forecast – Key Takeaways

Based on end users, the point of care testing market is segmented into Hospitals, Clinics, Laboratories, Home Care and Assisted Living Healthcare Facilities.

Hospitals held majority of the point of care testing market, followed by Clinics. Increase in prevalence of chronic conditions such as cancer and cardiovascular diseases that require proper monitoring and prefer minimally invasive procedures are carried out in hospitals and clinics.

The home care segment is expected to grow at the highest rate over the forecast period driven by increasing preference for home and remote monitoring and rising demand for rapid tests among home care users.

By Region: Global Point of Care Testing Market & Forecast – Key Takeaways

The point of care testing market, by region, is dominated by North America and is expected to maintain its position throughout the forecast period. This can be attributed to rising prevalence of chronic disorders and infectious diseases, which need portable and rapid diagnosis, increasing number of product approvals, and rising government initiatives to support the adoption of POCT in this region.

Europe held second highest share of the point of care testing market.

Asia-Pacific point of care testing market is expected to grow at the fastest rate over the forecast period driven by growing geriatric population base, rising prevalence of target diseases, increasing demand for home healthcare and the introduction of new products enabled with advanced technologies.
