Abstracts

The global batter and breader premixes market size reached US$ 1,512 Million in 2022. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach US$ 2,194 Million by 2028, exhibiting a growth rate (CAGR) of 6.2% during 2023-2028.

Batter and breader premixes refer to food additives or coatings used to enhance the taste and texture, and retain the moisture level of various food products while grilling or frying. A batter is a thin mixture of flour, water, and other ingredients, such as eggs, sugar, salt, shortening, leavening agents, and flavorings. On the other hand, breader, also known as breading, refers to a dry mixture of flour, starch, seasonings, and leavening agents. They are widely utilized to prepare baked goods and applied as coatings to other food items, such as meat, poultry, seafood, and vegetables.

Batter and Breader Premixes Market Trends:

Batter and breader premixes are extensively used in the food processing industry to provide the desired flavor, texture, appearance, and aroma to different food products. This, along with their convenience, makes them an essential ingredient in the food processing sector. Additionally, the rising consumer inclination toward convenience foods, such as processed meat and seafood, is positively influencing the market growth. Besides this, the expanding working population, rapid urbanization, and hectic lifestyles have led to a significant shift toward ready-to-cook meals as they are less time-consuming. This, in confluence with the increasing number of food service providers offering battered and breaded meat and chicken products, has accelerated the product adoption. Furthermore, several leading players are investing in research and development (R&D) activities and launching innovative products, such as gluten- and genetically modified organism (GMO)-free variants, which are escalating the demand for batter and breader premixes. Other factors, including the emerging trend of fast-food culture, rising disposable incomes, and growing demand for healthy and quality food products, are creating a favorable market outlook.
