The global beer market size reached US$ 660.0 Billion in 2022. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach US$ 747.7 Billion by 2028, exhibiting a growth rate (CAGR) of 1.9% during 2023-2028.

Beer is a fermented alcoholic beverage produced from malted grain, water and yeast and flavored with hops to impart a bitter flavor. Its moderate consumption can offer several health benefits, including improving heart health, controlling blood sugar levels, enhancing bone and muscle strength and minimizing the risk of developing dementia, cancer and heart attack. As it is a rich source of antioxidants, beer aids in maintaining cholesterol levels, boosting memory, and preventing kidney stones. It is widely consumed on special occasions, events and parties and served in restaurants, hotels, micro-breweries, Pubs, bars and cafes. At present, manufacturers are relying on kegerators to increase the shelf life and retain the flavor, aroma, color, and texture of the stored beer.

Beer Market Trends:

Increasing preferences for premium alcoholic beverages on account of the emerging trend of socializing and parties, especially among millennials, working professionals, and young adults, represent one of the major factors positively influencing the demand for beer worldwide. In addition, the rising adoption of beer as a cocktail ingredient in distilleries is contributing to the market growth. Moreover, the emerging trend of gifting beer in customized bottles and is contributing to the market growth. Apart from this, key players are introducing flavored beer in novel variants like botanical and fruits via e-commerce channels. This, in confluence with the rising purchase of beer through online distribution channels as they offer easy product availability with vast catalogs and fast shipping facilities, is providing a positive thrust to the market. Furthermore, extensive promotional activities and celebrity endorsements by product manufacturers on social media platforms are anticipated to positively influence the sales of beer in the coming years.
