Abstracts

The global deployable military shelters market size reached US$ 970.8 Million in 2022. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach US$ 1,074.2 Million by 2028, exhibiting a growth rate (CAGR) of 1.58% during 2023-2028.

Deployable military shelters refer to portable, lightweight and temporary shelters widely used by the militaries in the absence of permanent shelters in fixed military bases. They are designed for quick deployment and can be easily set up within minutes in various terrains and geographies whenever required. They are primarily utilized to protect military personnel, equipment, arms, cargo, vehicles and other supplies against extreme weather conditions. They also find extensive applications in emergency relief camps, command and control centers, tactical communication centers, and medical camps. As a result, deployable military shelters are rapidly replacing their conventional counterparts due to their stronger frame, easy transportability, and higher tolerance to wind, snow and other environmental factors.

Deployable Military Shelters Market Trends:

A significant rise in border conflicts across the globe and the increasing military spending by governments of various nations represent the primary factors driving the market growth. Besides this, the rising national security threats and the growing battlefield requirements have strengthened the need for deployable military shelters in far-away warzones for training and strategic, operational purposes. Additionally, several leading manufacturers are heavily investing in developing portable shelters with reduced weight, high-quality materials, and fewer components to facilitate easy fabrication and assembly. This, in confluence with the surging sales of polymer-based product variants, is propelling the market growth. Furthermore, the recent outbreak of coronavirus disease (COVID-19) has accelerated the adoption of deployable military shelters as temporary COVID-19 medical centers across numerous countries. Moreover, the escalating demand for customized and multipurpose military shelters and the expanding manufacturing facilities are catalyzing the market growth. Other factors, including several product innovations, and significant advancements in design and material technologies, are also creating a positive outlook for the market.

Key Market Segmentation:

IMARC Group provides an analysis of the key trends in each sub-segment of the global deployable military shelters market report, along with forecasts at the global, regional and country level from 2023-2028. Our report has categorized the market based on type, size, material and application.
