Abstracts

The 7 major gastritis markets are expected to exhibit a CAGR of 2.69% during 2024-2034.

The gastritis market has been comprehensively analyzed in IMARC's new report titled "Gastritis Market: Epidemiology, Industry Trends, Share, Size, Growth, Opportunity, and Forecast 2024-2034". Gastritis is a medical condition characterized by erosion, swelling, or irritation of the lining of the stomach. This disease is mainly categorized as acute or chronic. Acute gastritis occurs suddenly and is usually severe, while chronic gastritis develops over time and may last for years. This illness can disrupt the normal functioning of the stomach, leading to indigestion, bloating, and a feeling of fullness after eating a small amount of food. Numerous other symptoms associated with the ailment include abdominal pain or discomfort, nausea, vomiting, excessive belching or hiccupping, loss of appetite, heartburn, blood in the stool or vomit, etc. The diagnosis of gastritis is typically made based on a combination of medical history and characteristic findings. The healthcare professional may also perform a physical investigation to assess the abdomen for tenderness, bloating, or any other signs of inflammation. An endoscopy, which involves inserting a thin, flexible tube with a light and camera through the mouth into the stomach to directly visualize the affected areas and confirm the underlying cause of the indications, is further recommended.

The increasing cases of Helicobacter pylori infections, which can result in persistent inflammation and damage to the stomach lining, are primarily driving the gastritis market. In addition to this, the rising prevalence of several associated risk factors, such as stress, excessive alcohol consumption, long-term use of nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, bile reflux, etc., is also creating a positive outlook for the market. Moreover, the widespread adoption of proton pump inhibitors, like omeprazole, esomeprazole, pantoprazole, etc., to reduce the production of stomach acid and help in healing the inflamed abdominal lining is further bolstering the market growth. Apart from this, the inflating application of probiotic supplements, since they work by restoring the balance of gut flora and alleviating symptoms in patients, is acting as another significant growth-inducing factor. Additionally, the emerging popularity of minimally invasive argon plasma coagulation therapy, which uses a focused beam of energy to coagulate and seal the abnormal blood vessels, thereby reducing the risk of complications, is expected to drive the gastritis market during the forecast period.

IMARC Group's new report provides an exhaustive analysis of the gastritis market in the United States, EU5 (Germany, Spain, Italy, France, and United Kingdom) and Japan. This includes treatment practices, in-market, and pipeline drugs, share of individual therapies, market performance across the seven major markets, market performance of key companies and their drugs, etc. The report also provides the current and future patient pool across the seven major markets. According to the report the United States has the largest patient pool for gastritis and also represents the largest market for its treatment. Furthermore, the current treatment practice/algorithm, market drivers, challenges, opportunities, reimbursement scenario and unmet medical needs, etc. have also been provided in the report. This report is a must-read for manufacturers, investors, business strategists, researchers, consultants, and all those who have any kind of stake or are planning to foray into the gastritis market in any manner.
